

The International Organization for Standardization (ISO) will develop global facility management standards if a British Standards Institution 's proposal (download pdf) is adopted. The standards will provide tools to the facility management industry to support best practices and improve competitiveness and communication for service providers and customers as well as reduce energy, carbon, and waste.